▲ Yazd attractions: at a glance

Yazd, also well-known as the city of windcatchers, is located between the northern Dasht-e Kavir and the southern Dasht-e Lut and is absolutely a city of the desert. The wind catchers and mud-brick houses are well representatives of a typical city of the desert.

Yazd is also well-known for its picturesque rooftops, which is of utmost attraction to many photographers. Besides, Yazd used to be one of the main places of Zoroastrianism, the ancient monotheistic religion, around 3500 years ago and is still considered the center of Zoroastrianism in Iran. This has caused the city to be the home to several religious sites in Iran including the Fire Temple, Chak Chak, and Towers of Silence. Yazd is famous for Terme, a special kind of textile, and also various kinds of tasty sweets such as Qotab, Haji Badam, and Baqlava you can buy as souvenirs here.

All these beauties have made the city a delightful destination for tourists traveling to Iran. There is a lot to be visited here in Yazd, incorporate it into your travel list to Iran!
